

Article One of the Italian Constitution

Italy is a Democratic Republic, founded on work.

The sovereignty belongs to the people in the forms and within the limits established from Constitution.

The democratic republic is a form of government in which the sovereignty is exercised by citizens through a vote.

People are all citizens, who are bound to the State by a citizenship report.

Citizenship is a link of belonging to a State that involves a series of rights and duties.

The Constitution is a fundamental regulatory act that defines the nature, the structure, the activity and the fundamental rules of an organization.

This act gives a lot of importance to the work and points to his character of right and duty.

Is a right because through the work everyone can have a dignified life.

Is a social duty because through the work everyone contributes to grow up all the society.
